

SEVENTH GRADE

October

Since last we spoke...

The 7th grade is beginning to adjust to the fast paced life of middle school! We have read 2 short stories and are well into our first novel, The Devil's Arithmetic by Jane Yolen. The students have been introduced to two new note-taking techniques and short answer tests. They have also completed their first grammar chapter and taken their first test. These grammar lessons will help set the foundation for the rest of our grammar lessons. They are also quickly adapting to the challenges of vocabulary tests that have well over 100 questions and are ready to take their 3rd test of the year. In social studies, we have also completed our first chapter and had in-class presentations.

Overall, the 7th grade is adjusting well and need to continue building on that momentum!

Until we meet again...
